Straight Lines:

Pg. 3 - ... Yes.

Pg. 3 - Have you ever heard of the Sinchon Massacre?

Pg. 3 - Maybe you should. We don't forget what was done in our name.

Pg. 3 - Your high-minded attitude of grace and diplomacy is unwarranted and unwelcomed. Also my title is "major." I believe I have earned it.

Pg. 12 - Oh please...

Pg. 12 - Am I supposed to forget the Arduous March?

Pg. 13 - That's two Americans now...

Pg. 13 - Two Americans. The other to eventually return. Of all the countries that you could have selected musicians from, your machine chose two from America. I find it very curious...

Pg. 13 - Yes it is! America has not provided the muscle and protection to your fledgling country that the DPRK has. The DPRK would not only like to see Nova Zion as an ally, but also a friend. And a friend would not associate with a friend's enemy.

Pg. 13 - And the DPRK has countless professional musicians! The finest you will find in the entire world. Trained from childhood to be masters of their craft!

Pg. 14 - And it obviously hasn't gotten through to you.

Pg. 14 - I certainly hope your machine hasn't made an error! For Nova Zion's sake!

Pg. 14 - I care more about this poor country than they do...

Pg. 15 - Hello, American.

Pg. 15 - And what does it mean?

Pg. 15 - I have no right to ask you to leave. After all, this room is for every Campaigner and not just myself.

Pg. 16 - Not in the sense that you mean. You Americans, whether you claim to love or hate socialism, have a child-like understanding of what socialism actually is.

Pg. 16 - What is that?

Pg. 16 - What are you looking at ON the tablet?

Pg. 16 - "Ideas for making bracelets..."

Pg. 17 - There is no sense in trying to educate the incurious.

Pg. 17 - Other than the fact that you're an American?

Pg. 17 - Well let's see... I'm here because I worked hard my entire life for this position. You are here because you were arbitrarily picked by the whim of a computer.

Pg. 17 - THEN LEAVE!

Pg. 20 - So... This is your unit?

Pg. 20 - So it would seem...

Pg. 20 - So... What other surprises are in store for us...

Pg. 28 - "hmm"

Pg. 28 - Hey.

Pg. 29 - The "mad fox?"

Pg. 29 - Gomez names them... He's very proud of it...

Pg. 29 - No.
